WAR'S HORRORS, -The horrors of war are described with ghastly realism in some "Side Notes from an Artist's Sketch Book" in the Daily News. On the first morning of the year

FRIDAY EVENING, FEBRUARY 8.

the correspondent set out from Fratesti for Putenieu, in Roumanis. Afar off a long, dark line, moving in caterpillar fashion, broke the horizon. It was a column of Turkish prisoners marching-the men who once kept the flower of the Russian army at bay around Plevna. Half starved, almost dead with fatigue and severe cold, many with fever burning in their eyes-mere stalking bones and foul rags-came the brave troops who made the fame of Osman Pasha. Thousands of birds of prey whirled tled on his eleuched hand, and the dogs were slinking round their victim. At night a star and the crescent moon, the only signs in the clear sky, shine brilliantly. There is the ominous black line wending up the valley-more wretched prisoners, foot sore and weary, with their cadaverous faces and ice laden beards. A halt is made at the little bridge to dole out to each his frozen loaf of bread. A few poor fellows throw themselves down on the snow and fervently pray after their fashion. How the heavens, with the bright symbols of their faith glittering on the frosted snow and on their misery, seem to mock these poor Turks!

How Much to Eat .- Dr. Wilson, an eminent English physician, gives the following precepts upon the time and amount of meals: "For the active, out-door laborer and artisan, an early breakfast before work, a mid-day dinner, with an interval of rest, and supper after the day's work is over have long been proved by experience to the most conducive to health. For the business man, a later breakfast, a mid day luncheon and a late dinner after the day's work is over, is the best arrangement. For literary men who write more in the evening than during the day, an early dinner and a light super will be found to be the most advantageous for steady work. Idlers, to enjoy life, if they possibly can, should dine early if they intend to spend the evening at the theatres and the like; but if they accept dinner invitations freely they should be very careful not to eat too much at the mid-day meal. Tho breakfast hour should be determined, in great measure, by the hour of rising, but in any case food should be partaken of before the material business of the day is commenced. Those who like to take a 'constitutional' before breakfast would find their appetite whetted and their walk made all the more enjoyable if they took a little milk, or cafe-au-lait, with bread or bis cuit before starting. Work done before breakfast is always irksome and fatiguing, and on that account is very likely to be badly done. The last meal should be sufficiently late for the whole not to be absorbed before retiring to rest. To a person in health three meals a day ought to be quite sufficient, and the practice of continually 'taking something' is sure to bring on indigestion.'

SCRUBBING A BLACK GIRL WHITE WITH LYE.-A telegram from Battle Creek, Mich., to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, says : - "An insane woman of this city, named Mrs. Elihu Warriner, was recently seized with a curious fréak, and subjected a young colored girl to cruel and almost brutal treatment. The girl. while out begging, called at the house of the insane woman, who was at home aloue, for something to eat. The woman was cooking at the time, and said she had nothing then to give the little girl, but promised to bake her a nice pie if she would wait a while. Not knowing whom she was talking with, this was an inducement for her to remain. The lunatio did not fancy the girl's color, and told her that she had a process for making black tolks white; also kindly offering to give her the benefit of the same if she would call again. The next morning, being anxious to undergo such a marvelous transformation, and believing all that was said to her, the innocent negro put in an appearance. She was asked to take off all her clothing, and, after being placed upon the floor, face downward, the lunatic took a scrubbing brush and covered her naked body with strong lye from head to foot, which produced terrible pain, but resulted effectually in cating off the black skin and making a slight alteration in the poor darkey's color. Her screams and cries of distress aroused the neighbors, who soon came to her assistance and took charge of the lu-

TRYING TO FOOL THE HANGMAN .- In 1787 a fellon named Kelly was sentenced to execution at Trim, in Ireland. On the early morn ing of the day intended to be his last he contrived to cut his blanket into strips about four inches wide, join them together with strong woolen threads, and form a double sling. This he passed under his hips, fastened the ends at his neck, and there provided an iron book to receive the halter. Thus accounted he proceed ed to the place of execution. It is supposed that he had found means to bribe the hangman, to whom he made a request to draw him up close to the pulley, and lower him gently when dead. But the crafty mancouvre did not succeed. Kelly had not allowed for the stretching of the strips of blanket by his own weight, the point of the hook fastened into his windpipe and gave him so much pain that he struggled violently. He was, however, allowed to hang until really dead, when his sling apparatus was discovered -All the Year Round.
